Louis Tracy of University of Chi-

By United Press.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The state today drew a lightning web around Nathan P. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, self-confessed slayers of 14-year-old Robert Franks.

Efforts to place responsibility for additional crimes on the two millionaires were under way, following identification by Charles Ream, taxicab chauffeur, as the youths who attacked him last fall, spirited him away in a motor car, rendered him unconscious with ether, and then performed a crude gland operation upon him.

The chauffeur was positive in his identification.

"It's them," he shouted, as the two slayers were led past him.

Police today were attempting to discover evidence to confirm their suspicion that the two "intellectual murderers" also are the men who killed Louis Tracy, a fellow-student with them in the University of Chicago, shot after he had been induced to enter a motor car near the Leopold home.

Tracy was slain November 25 and his body thrown into the street. Police have been working on the case ever since on the theory he was killed by gland bandits who were unable to perform an operation because of the terrific struggle he put up and were forced to kill him.

Two automatic pistols, similar to the weapon with which Tracy was shot, have been found in Leopold's room, police said.

In response to reports that strong pressure had been brought to bear to hinder prosecution in the case, State Attorney Crowe revealed that Julian Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Company, and a close business associate of Loeb's father had at first attempted to have the case dropped.

Crowe told him the boys had confessed the Franks murder and also had told how they at one time planned to kidnap Rosenwald's own grandson.

The millionaire was strenuously impressed.

"If all this is true," he said, "no punishment can be too severe for these abnormal boys."

It now goes to conference with the Senate where it will be determined among other questions whether House conferees will accept amendment by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, which would give publicly to campaign expenses.

On Flight Over
Three States

By United Press.

LAKESIDE, N. J., June 3.—The Navy dirigible Shenandoah left the air station here at 8.20 A. M. today for a flight over New York and Pennsylvania.

The Shenandoah's route was over Newark, N. J., to New York, up the Hudson to Albany and then over Birmingham to Buffalo. From there the big ship will return by way of Pennsylvania, flying over Williamsport, Reading and Philadelphia.

Commander Lansdowne was in his dirigible over Niagara Falls, perhaps the first time a dirigible has gone over the great natural wonder. Lansdowne announced he would bring the vessel as low as was consistent with safety.

The Shenandoah seemed to have rough sailing through the ebbie air currents above Storm King, at times being almost perpendicular. Passing Newburgh she was about 3,000 feet high directly over the river. Five miles north of Newburgh the Shenandoah encountered a heavy rain storm and high wind.

PRESIDENT SIGNS

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The tax reduction bill was signed Monday by President Coolidge.

Persons paying on the installment plan may cut their second payment, due June 15, by one-half and the last two installments by one-fourth each. OVER CUTTING CURB
TO LENHART GARAGE*Action of South Side on Heels of Building Without Per-

Notice Also Served to Cease Operations on Driveway to Race Street; Bill Prohibiting Installation of Gasoline Pumps at Curb Adopted.

Council took a decided stand Monday night on the question of whether H. L. Lenhart shall continue to ignore city regulations in the erection of a garage at Race street and Davidson avenue by passing a resolution ordering that he cease at once preparations to build a bridge from his property to Race street and that the city solicitor be instructed to take such action as shall compel Mr. Lenhart to replace a curb he cut without a permit in order to make a way into the garage.

Against Mr. Lenhart it was charged that he had not secured a permit to build a garage, a frame structure; that he had failed to live up to a promise to erect a $25,000 brick structure but had put up a frame structure, and that he had not secured a permit to cut the curb to gain access to the garage.

Council adopted the bill prohibiting the placing of gasoline pumps on streets or alleys, including sidewalks, of the city. All must be back of the property line in such a manner as not to be an obstruction to traffic. Use of a hose to feed from a pump back of the property line, across a sidewalk, will not be permitted.

Any pump erected in violation of the terms of the ordinance will be considered a nuisance and the city may proceed to have it removed and penalize the owner. The fine for each day a pump is not removed will be $10.

Before passing the measure Council granted permission to Hunker & Roth, otherwise the Mason Motor Company, to erect a pump at the curb in front of its new building in West Front street. An application for a permit for this had been pending for some time and in view of the large investment in the building under way it was the sense that the permit should be granted. It was explained that in planning for the building this was looked upon as one of the sources of revenue.

COUNTY SCHOOL YEAR SUCCESS

"We are closing one of the most if not the most prosperous year in the history of the Fayette county schools," said Superintendent J. S. Carroll Monday when asked concerning the finishing of the school year's work. Superintendent Carroll declared that this week would be the end of the term for all schools under his supervision and graduation exercises were scheduled to be held in a number within the week. According to Superintendent Carroll the school year just closing is noted for several things, among the most important being the lack of an epidemic of any nature in the schools under his supervision. Attendance has been excellent, he said, and this, together with a more determined spirit of learning and gaining all the knowledge they can, seems to have instilled in the graduates this year, a more determined effort to continue their schooling.

Your "Kellogg's Bran" used by me as a cereal has done more for me in two weeks than the best of doctors' medicine I have taken in the last twenty years. It is a wonderful, and it is so simple.

Your truly,
Arlingford G. Gorman,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the Intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purges them. It acts exactly as nature bids. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary bran. But two tablespoons daily—in milk or cream, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the evening on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and kneaded, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

Mother Tells Very Remarkable Story

Son Underweight and Delicate for Seventeen Years Is Now Strong and Well.

Sulac Given Credit for Restoring Health.

Remarkable New Remedy Continues Its Early Record of Successful Successes.

Every mother who has seen her children suffer with indigestion, constipation and the other forms of stomach trouble that have compelled her to deny them the candy and sweets that other children thrive on will be interested in the following statement made by Mrs. Boyd Shick, of New Bethlehem:

"Ever since my boy was a baby he has been delicate and underweight. He has suffered constantly with his stomach, and constipation. Always took cold easily and nothing we ever did for him would make him gain weight or strength.

"Every time he would eat candy or sweets like the other 'kids' he would have a terrible spell. We have bought all kinds of medicines for him but they did not help. So far he has taken four bottles of Sulac and it has worked wonders with him. Indigestion and constipation are all gone, he eats anything he wants and is gaining weight right along. I can truthfully state that Sulac has done the work for him. I have recommended it to friends of mine and I am glad to tell anyone that Sulac is the best remedy I know of for stomach trouble and constipation.

Yours very truly,
Mrs. Boyd Shick,
New Bethlehem, Pa."

Sulac is a certified product of the Southern Laboratories of Atlanta, Georgia, and was brought to Connellsville only after our enterprising druggists had convinced themselves of its wonderful success in other territories. It is highly recommended for constipation, heart burn, indigestion, gastric, loss of appetite, stomach trouble and other forms of stomach trouble.

You can try Sulac with absolutely no risk. Go to your druggist and buy six bottles. If after taking them you are not perfectly satisfied, ask for your money back. The manufacturers authorize your druggist to make this offer. Sulac is sold in Connellsville by A. A. Clarke and high class druggists almost everywhere. If you happen to live in a town where it cannot be had, write direct to the Southern Laboratories, 55 Margaret street, Atlanta, Ga., and it will be sent you postpaid at the regular price of $1.00 per bottle.

Sulac is sold in Connellsville, Pa., by A. A. Clarke, Connellsville Drug Co., and other high class druggists.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky,
So was it when my life began;
So is it now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die:
The child is father of the man;
And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety.

A FEW SUBSTANTIAL DISHES

Calves' tongues are delicious eating simply stewed until tender, sliced and served hot with the following sauce:

Spanish Sauce (Brown Sauce).—Take chopped calves' feet and real bones crushed, with raw ham trimmings, cut into pieces, chopped carrots, leeks, onions, celery, parsley roots, salt and pepper, with a little thyme. Practice alone and much tasting will determine the quantities to be used. Add a few cloves, a bay leaf or two, these should be used with caution, and put all into a flat roasting pan, spread sweet fat over all and roast until a golden color. Stir, then the whole may be evenly colored; then sprinkle with flour and brown again, using care that it is not scorched. Now remove the whole mixture to a kettle, add soup stock to fill the kettle and a can of tomatoes. Simmer for six hours, strain and reduce by skimming again three hours. Clear by skimming and straining. Put away on ice.

Calves' Tongues Boiled.—Cover four fresh calves' tongues with boiling water, add five slices of carrot, two stalks of celery, one onion, sprig with six cloves, fifteen peppercorns and one-half tablespoonful of salt. Cook until the tongues are tender. Remove the skin and roots and cut into halves lengthwise. Cook one-half can of tomatoes with two cupfuls of brown stock reduced to one-half. Reheat the tongues in the sauce. Serve garnished with parsley, lemon slices and triangles of bread sautéed in butter.

Virginia Macaroni.—Boil one and one-half cupfuls of inch pieces of macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain over cold water, drain and put half of it in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with one-half tablespoonful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of mustard, and one-fourth cupful of grated cheese; repeat, pour over one and one-half cupfuls of white sauce, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a hot oven until the crumbs are brown.

OPERATION ADVISED FRIEND SAID "DON'T DO IT!"

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First. Proved Good Advice

Chicago, Illinois.—"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to be sick three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to see a friend with her first baby and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a box of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. I feel like a new woman. I know I have any kind of female trouble. It has helped me and a lot of my friends. —Mrs. A. McANDLESS, 1208 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Cokers, Again Without Support of Fans, Show Their "Stuff" and Win

Local Team Comes From Behind and Hands Harmarville Contingent Lacing.

SCORE THREE IN SIXTH

Playing behind a handicap of two runs which their opponents secured in the opening frame and with a very discouraging crowd in the grounds, the Connellsville Independents received the aid of their supporters yesterday in time to shake off their dependency at the poor support such a good ball club is receiving, and defeated the crack Harmarville Consumers, 3-2.

The game was just another proof of the superiority of the Independents. The club is the best in Fayette county, undoubtedly, and it is proving its claim to the title in Western Pennsylvania at every opportunity. Last season, the Consumers, with nearly the same line-up, won the semi-pro championship of this end of the state.

Few fans yesterday thought the Cokers had a chance, but the locals have improved wonderfully and gave a dandy exhibition of baseball playing. Nevertheless there seems to be something wrong with the game here. Either fans don't realize what kind of ball they are missing or they don't want it. Perhaps the best of players—3 o'clock—is not good but this will be determined before the week is out. Today the game with Martin Furnitures will begin at 5 o'clock. Tomorrow's clash with Gaston will be at 4 o'clock and Saturday the Clarkburg, W. Va. team will be met at 3:30 o'clock. By that time the club expects to know the attitude of the fans.

Yesterday's game was played in both sunshine and rain. The skies clouded up when the game started and then rain fell. It did not stop the progress of the game, however. It was in the rainy times that Connellsville scored the three runs necessary for the victory.

Harmarville drew first blood. Two runners were piled up in the initial frame. Doherty and Murray crossing the plate on Martin's double to right. The Cokers were unable to get anything out of the inning. Carroll opened the inning by drawing a walk. He went to second on Roemele's bouncer to Conley and both runners were called safe. Carroll stole third and scored on Smith's sacrifice fly to left. Connellsville's next runs came in the sixth. Fisher opened with a clean single over short. Then Good poled out also and Cummings followed suit, scoring "Hoba" and sending Good to third. Cummings immediately stole second. Fallow sent out to Conley and was safe when that player nipped. Good had scored and Cummings went third in the meantime. Fallow was sent to second. Things turned down for a moment and then the slippery ball skidded off Schulte's glove. Cummings, on his toes, dashed home. Fallow also advancing. The slide was retried.

Harmarville chalked up another counter in the seventh after Lutz had hit safely, scoring when Froy failed to hold Roemele's lob to second in a force-out play on Lutz after Schulte's just sent one to the shortstop.

No practice will be held this evening out of respect for T. D. Ambrose, whose son, Joseph, is an outfielder for the Divadas. A floral tribute was purchased by the players and taken to the home by the club's president, Peter C. Abate.

MONESSEN PLAYS AT SCOTSDALE FIELD ON WEDNESDAY AT 5.15

At 5:15 P. M. on Wednesday, June 4, Monessen will make his first appearance at Athletic Park, Scottdale. During last season Monessen had one of the best clubs on the Monongahela River, defeating Charlestown and Morgantown. On Monday the veteran "Jack" Monessen, the ex-1913 league, took over the management and has secured additional talent from West to help him in his first game against Scottdale.

Lizyme will be on the mound for Scottdale; Harry Randolph will play middle field; either Kopp or Joe Brubaker of Braddock Elks will cover the short field. One other change is being made in the roster, announcement to be forthcoming in a day or two.

CULBRANSEN

The Registering Piano

The Registering Piano

The Culbransen Registering Piano of today is the world's latest achievement in musical instruments. It stands absolutely alone in the artistic results it produces and the ease with which they are obtained. It is played by music roll and pedals, as any other instrument of its type, but there the similarity ends. The Culbransen register one's every "touch" on each note. It can be played with all the feeling, the life, the delicacy of the very finest piano made you ever listened to. Because there are none, we are confident that the Culbransen is not confused with other instruments of the type type. We challenge investigation of it as an Easy-to-Play Registering Piano that registers your every touch, that registers your time, that registers your expression.

"THE ACQUITTAL" showing today at the Paramount presents Norman Kerry and Claire Windsor in the leading roles.

Norman Kerry is on trial charged with the murder of his father Andrew Prentice. His father is his father's brother, Robert Armstrong. Armstrong and Windsor had loved the same girl, Madeline, who had chosen Windsor. Litch Craig secretly engaged to the dead daughter, and Windsor was in love. Armstrong's alleged questioning brings out that Prentice and Armstrong had become estranged over Armstrong's charges. The night of Prentice's death he had been with Litch and Windsor and had mailed a letter to Armstrong which the latter never received. A taxi driver battles Windsor left home at midnight proven by their looking at a clock in a nearby butcher shop. A broken clock in the Prentice home showed the murder was committed at 11:52. Madeline suddenly discovers that the "clock" in the butcher window was a clock for meat sales. This clears her husband and Armstrong acts out to discover the murderer. A postal inspector brings to light the murder on the "mail" night confiding Prentice's fear of death—resulting in one of the most amazing surprises in modern drama.

Wednesday and Thursday Mary Philbin will be seen in "Fool's Highway."

The Soisson

"JUDGMENT OF THE STORM" showing today and Wednesday at the Soisson was conceived and written by Mrs. Ethel Styles Middleton, a Pittsburgh housewife. Lloyd Hughes supported by a 10-man cast appears in the leading role.

"Judgment of the Storm" has every quality that goes into making a fine production. This is more entertainment in this picture than in several productions we've seen that cost close to the million point and are seen are soon forgotten. This picture did not cost a million dollars and does not rely on elaborate settings to put it over. It has a plot that is off the beaten path a plot which has so much meat that the director has been able to inject a punch in each reel big enough for the climax of several ordinary photoplays. In fact, the thrilling situations come so thick and fast that one wonders what is going to be left for the climax and they go sailing into a sea of blue scenes that will keep you guessing until the end of the picture.

Way Down East are pictured here and if you have not seen them yet, you will not see them until you have seen "Acquittal." CHAPTER VII

Kilmeny Explains

Into the depths of her searching self-contempt came his blithe good morning neighbor.

Her heart leaped but before she looked around Moyn made sure no tales could be read in her face. Her eyes met his with quiet scorn.

"I was wondering if you would dare come."

"Why shouldn't I come since I wanted to?"

"You can ask me that—now?" Her manner told him that judgment had been passed, but it did not shake the cheerful good humor of the man.

"Of course you can. I might have known you could. You will probably have the effrontery to deny that you are the man who robbed Captain Kilmeny."

"Did he say I was the man? There was a man named a bunch of interest in his voice."

"He didn't say it. I know it must be you. I told him everything—how you found out from me that he was going to Gunnison with the money."

"I knew what you mean," he told her easily.

and hurried away to rob him of it because you are his cousin he wouldn't accuse you. But I did. I do now. You stole the money a second time. Her words were low but in them was an extraordinary vehemence, the tone of suppressed feeling.

So he wouldn't accuse me, not yet wouldn't deny that I was the man. Well, I'll not deny it either, since you're so sure."

"You are wise, sir. You can't deny me a second time. Your denial would count for nothing. And now I think there is nothing more to be said."

She had risen and was about to turn away. A gesture of his hand stopped her.

"If you were so sure about me why didn't you have the officers here to arrest me?"

"Because—because you are a relative of my friends."

"What was the only reason, was it?"

"What other reason could there be?" she asked, a flash of warning in her eyes.

"There might be this reason—that at the bottom of your heart you know I didn't do it."

"Can you tell me you didn't hold up Captain Kilmeny? Dare you tell me that?"

He shrugged his broad shoulders. "No, I held him up."

"And robbed him?"

"If you like to put it that way. I had to do it. An opera house holdup. I'll make it right with him when I see Captain Kilmeny."

"You admit you took the money?"

"Sure I took it. Had to have it in my business. If you'll sit down again and listen neighbor, I'll tell you the whole story."

The amused assurance in his manner seemed reassured.

"No."

The clash of battle was in the meeting of their eyes. She had courage just as he had but she was fighting against her own desire.

"I have listened too often already," she protested.

"It doesn't hurt you any, has it?" Lady Farquhar thinks it has. The words slipped out before she could stop them but as their import came home to her the girl's face flamed. "I mean that—that—"

"If I know what you mean, he told her easily a smile in his blue eyes. You're a young woman—and I'm an old-fashioned man. So Lady Farquhar thinks we ought to meet. That's all both. I'm not intending to make love to you, even though I think you're a mighty nice girl. I'm saying I was what I was. Your friends can't shut you up in a class, can they? You're going to keep on growing. Life was made to be lived."

"Yes."

"What I think," she said sweetly. "That isn't arranged for girls that way—not if they belong to the class I do. We're shut in—chaperoned from everything that's natural. You don't know how I hate it."

"Of course you do. You're a live one. I think you're going to get up and walk out of here."

down and listen to me. She looked him straight between the eyes. But I don't think morality is only a convention. Mr. Kilmeny, 'thou shalt not steal' for instance. Depends what you steal. If you take from a man what doesn't belong to him you're doing the community a service. But we went on into that now though I'll say this. What is right for me wouldn't be for Captain Kilmeny. As I told you before our standards are different."

"Yes, you explained that to me just after you—while you were hiding from the officers after the first robbery," she asserted dryly.

He looked at her and laughed. You're proving it all over and judge and just all in one breath you."

"She held her little head unbecomingly erect. Not again was she going to let her sympathy for him warp her judgment."

"I'm ready to hear what you have to say, Mr. Kilmeny."

"Not guilty, ma'am."

His jaunty insolence struck sparks from her. That in what you told us before and within half an hour we found out that you knew where the booty was hidden. Before that discrepancy was cleared up you convinced us of your innocence by stealing the money a second time."

"What did I do with it? he asked. "How should I know?"

From his pocket he drew a note book. Between two of its leaves was a slip of paper which he handed to Moyn. I was a receipt in full from the treasurer of the Gunnison County Fair association to John Kilmeny for the sum previously taken from him by parties unknown."

The girl looked at him with shining eyes. "You repented and took the money back?"

"No. I didn't repent, but I took it back."

"Why?"

"That's a long tale. It's tied up with the story of my life—goes back thirty-one years, before I was born, in fact. Want to hear it?"

"Yes."

"My father was a young man when he came to this country. The West wasn't very civilized then. My father was fearless and outspoke. This made him enemies among the gang of cattle thieves operating in the country where his ranch lay. He lost calves one day he caught a brand horse at work. The fellow refused to surrender. There was a fight, and my father killed him."

"Oh!" cried the girl softly in fascinated horror.

"Such things had to be in those days. A man that was a man had sometimes to fight or else go to the wall."

"I can see that. I want to blame your father. Only. It must have been horrible to have to do."

"The fellow thieve of the man swore vengeance. One night they caught the chief—that's what I need to call my father—caught him alone in a gambling hall in the cow town where the stockmen came to buy provisions. My father had gone there by appointment to meet a man—lured to his death by a forged note. He knew he had probably come to the end of the passage as soon as he had stepped into the place. His one chance was to turn and run. He wouldn't do that."

Moyn looking at the son, could believe easily this story of the father. "Go on," she nodded tensely.

"The quarrel came, as of course it would. Just before the guns flashed a stranger rose from a corner and told the ruffians they would have to count him in the scrap that he wouldn't stand for a six to one 'row'."

"Wasn't that you? I suppose he was a friend of your father he had helped some time."

"No. He had never seen him before. But he happened to be a man."

The eyes of the girl were shining. For the moment she was almost beautiful. A flame seemed to run over her dusky face the glow of her generous heart finding expression externally.

"I'm glad there are such men," she said softly.

"The story of that fight is a classic to lay in the hills. When it ended two of the rustlers were dead, two badly wounded and the others galloping away for their lives. The chief and his unknown friend were lying on the floor not to pick up."

"But they lived—surely they didn't die?"

Yes, they lived and became close friends. A few years later they were partners. Both of them are dead now. Sara Lundy—that was the name of my father's rescuer—left two children, a boy and a girl. We call the boy Curly. He was down at the camp fishing with me."

She saw the truth then—knew in a flash that the man beside her had run the risk of prison to save his friend. And her heart went out to him in such a rush of feeling that she had to turn her face away.

"You paid back the debt to the son that your father owed him. Oh, I'm so glad—so glad."

"Guessed it, have you?"

"Your friend was the thief?"

"He took the money but he's no thief—not in his heart. In England only a criminal would do such a thing but it's different here. A holdup may be a decent fellow gone wrong through drink and bad company. That's how it was this time. My friend is a range rider. His heart is as open and clean as the plains. But he's young yet—just turned twenty—and he's really tied. This thing was sprung on him by an older man who whom he had been drinking. Before they were sober he and Moyn had taken the money."

"I'm sorry," he said almost under her breath.

He explained more fully. Colter by chance got a line on what the kid and Moyn were planning to pull off. Knowing I had some influence with Curly he came straight to me. That was just after the finals in the riding. We hurried out to find Curly. Well, we were too late. While we were looking for him they were going to pull off Colter and I met the president of the bank. We had known him in the mining country and he held us there talking. While we were still there Moyn came to the robbery."

"And then?"

"We struck straight back to the corral. Our horses were there. The boys had ridden back wrapped them for their own, and hit the trail. Moyn's idea had been to throw suspicion on us for an hour or two until they could make their getaway. We rode back to the crowd learned the particulars and followed the boys. My thought was that if we could get the money from them we might make terms with the association."

"That's why you were in a hurry when you passed me."

"That's why."

And of course the sheriff thought you were running away from him. He couldn't think anything else, could he?"

"How blind I was—how lacking in faith. And all the time I knew in my heart that you had done it."

She approached herself.

"Did your friends know it? Did Miss Joyce think I couldn't have done it?"

"You'll have to ask her what she thought. I didn't hear Joyce give an opinion."

"Is she going to marry that fellow Verlander?"

"I don't know."

"He'll ask her, won't he?"

She smiled at his blunt question. "Little wally. You'll have to ask Mr. Verlander that. I'm not in his confidence."

"You're quibbling. You know well enough."

"I think he will."

"Will she take him?"

"It's hard to tell what Joyce will do. I'd rather not discuss the subject, please. Tell me, did you find your friends?"

"We ran them down in the hills at last. I knew pretty well where they were and on morning I dropped in on them. We talked it all over, and I put it up to them that if they would turn the loot over to me I'd try to call off the officers. Curly was sick and ashamed of the whole business and was willing to do what ever I thought best. Moyn had different notions, but I persuaded him to see the light. They told me where they had hidden the money in the river. I was on my way back to get it when I found little Boss Lander lost in the hills. Gill nabbed me as I took her to the ranch."

"And after you were taken back to Gunnison—did you break prison?"

"I proved an alibi—one the sheriff couldn't get away from. We had faked proof we weren't near the scene of the robbery. The president of the bank had been talking to us about ten minutes when the treasurer of the association drove up at a gallop to say he had just been robbed."

"So they freed you?"

"I made a proposition to the district attorney and the directors of the association—that if I got the money back all prosecutions would be dropped."

There stopped. I came back for the money and found it gone."

"If you had only told me that then."

"I had no time. My first thought was to tell my cousin the truth but I was afraid to take a chance on him. The only way to save Curly was to take back the money myself."

"You must think a lot of your friend to go so far for him."

"The mother turned him over to me to make a man of him. I owe him that. I owed it to his father's son."

Her eyes poured upon him their warm approving light. "You would have to help him no matter what it cost."

He protested against heroics with a face crinkled to humor. "It wasn't costing me a cent."

"It might have cost you a great deal. Suppose that Captain Kilmeny had picked up his gun. You couldn't have shot him?"

"I'd have told him who I was and why I must have the money. No, Miss Doughty. I don't fit the specifications of a hero."

Moyn's lips curved in a sweet little derisive twist that was a smile in embryo. "I know about you, sir."

Kilmeny took his eyes from her to let them rest upon a man and a woman walking the river trail below. The man bowed and the woman bowed and the two bowed at the greeting by kissing his hat. When he looked back at his companion he was smiling broadly. For the two by the river bank were Lord and Lady Farquhar.

One glance told Moyn that her chaplain had made up his mind to drive Jack Kilmeny from the field. Lady Jim looked at her husband. He cleared his throat in some embarrassment.

"Morning, Mr. Kilmeny. If you have time I'd like to have you look over some ore samples some from our mine."

The American smiled. He understood perfectly. "I've got all the time there is."

Moyn intervened again. "First let me tell you the news. Mr. Kilmeny has been freed of all suspicion in connection with the robbery. The money has been returned and the whole thing dropped."

Farquhar's face cleared. "Glad to hear it. He emphasized his words, by adding a moment later: 'By Jove, I am glad. Congratulations, Mr. Kilmeny!'"

His wife added here, but there was a note of reserve in her manner. Plainly she was not fully satisfied.

Eagerly Moyn turned to the young man. "May I tell all about it?"

WOMAN WILL LIVE ON ISLE TO STUDY BIRDS

Naturalist Will Dwell in Tent on Scott Head Island to Learn of Migrations.

London.—An extremely interesting though lonely six months is ahead of an English woman naturalist, Miss E. L. Turner, who has just left London to take up her residence on Scott Head island, two miles out from the wild and desolate coast of Norfolk.

Miss Turner is pioneering herself on this almost unknown and never visited island in order to learn more about bird habits. She has spent years studying birds, but confesses she has gained little real knowledge about them. She is particularly anxious to find out something more about migratory birds, and on this island in the North sea she will be able to keep watch of their arrival.

There are no houses on Scott Head island, and Miss Turner has taken her own tent, a wearily painted affair which roused some curiosity among the scientists who accompanied her as far as the coast.

"The tent," explained Miss Turner, "is the one from which I believe the British army took the idea of camouflage. I used it in the Farns islands as a hiding place while watching birds as they came in the winter of 1914. It became a dirty yellow and could be seen all over the island, so one day I got some green paint for it. The day was windy, I clutched at the flapping canvas and dabbed paint on it as best I could. Then I walked away from it, and, to my astonishment, it became invisible."

Party For Miss Sisco.
The Junior Society of the Baptist Church with the superintendent, Mrs. Arthur Snyder, gave a surprise party at the church for Miss Elsie Sisco, who is leaving to spend a month with her sister, Mrs. Harold Kling, in Georgia. Games were played and refreshments were served. Miss Sisco, who has assisted in the Junior work as well as being pianist, was presented with a fountain pen.

Duchess de Tallyrand's
Husband to Sell Estates

Above is pictured the duchess de Tallyrand, the former Anna Gould, whose husband, the Duc de Tallyrand, has placed at public auction sale his vast estates comprised in the principality of Sagan, which lies between Alsace and Brandenburg. The domain is of about 600 square miles and has 65,000 population with many public buildings, a city hall, many chateaux, a Gothic church and a river "full of fish." The only qualifications are that the Duc de Tallyrand shall be permitted to retain the title of "hereditary highness" and that his minister of finance shall determine the sale price.

WORLD WAR VETERAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE

Albert Paschall Came Home From France in Run-Down Condition. Neighbor Recommended Tanlac and Today He Feels Like New Man.

"Here's hoping that my experience will convince others of the wonderful merits of Tanlac," said Albert A. Paschall, a World War veteran residing at 650 East Main St., Norristown, Pa.

"While in the service in France I was gassed and arrived home with my nerves badly shattered. Also my appetite deserted me and I had so much trouble from indigestion that most of the time was an occasion of dread to me. In this condition I could not sleep well and always felt tired and worn-out."

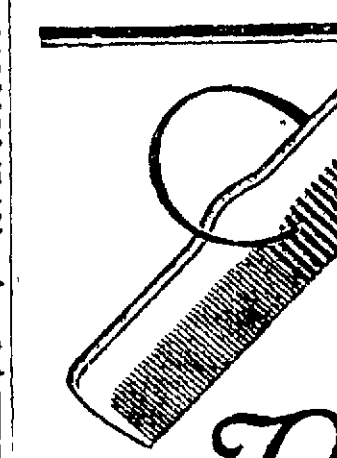

"I was getting discouraged when a neighbor lady advised Tanlac, and it is to her and Tanlac that I owe the wonderful change that has come over me. I now eat well and sleep well, have no more indigestion and, in fact, Tanlac has done me a world of good and I consider it a privilege to be instrumental in letting everybody know about it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 10 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

CHIEF FIGURES IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has presented the French Government $1,000,000 to reconstruct the roof of the Rhine Cathedral, destroyed by the Germans, and to restore the fountains and gardens at Versailles and Fontainebleau. Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's Labor Premier, declared Sir Broderick Harwell is a "disgraceful blot" on British knight-hood because he has successfully disposed of four big cargoes of liquor to bootleggers 10 miles off the American coast. Pope Pius XI has decreed 1925 as a "Holy Year." New York courts have ruled that Richard Walter Tally, playwright, author of "The Bird of Paradise," plagiarized the play from the Hawaiian, written by Mrs. Grace A. Peardler, a kindly old lady of California, and that he and Oliver Morosco, who produced it, must pay her all profits derived from the play, estimated at $2,000,000 in its 12 years of production.
